AUTO CAN NOT BE SEIZED IF MORTGAGED

RIGHTS OF LIEN ARE UPHELD JUDGE KILLETS REVERSED

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals Holds That the Mortgagee has an Interest Which Cannot be Taken Away or Confiscated.

That the government of the United States cannot "high handedly" ignore the rights of individuals and concerns who have financed purchases of automobiles, which, without their knowledge or consent, may have been used for the illegal transportation of liquor or other contraband, is the burden of an opinion handed down in United States circuit court of appeals at Cincinnati by Presiding Judge Arthur C. Denison.

Circuit Judge Denison stated that the case presented three substantial questions: "The first, whether such transportation as here occurred, if it had been before the passage of the national prohibition act, would have been that 'removal' which Revised Statutes Section 3450 denounces; the second, as to the status in which such transportation has now been put by the passage of the national prohibition act and the Willis-Campbell act (sometimes called the beer act), and the third, as to the effect of the government's action in seizing under Section 26 of the national prohibition act and prosecuting and convicting under that section the persons transporting."

"As to the first and second questions our initial attention will be challenged by testing the affirmative theory on an extreme case, but one short of which it seemingly can not stop. If the automobile driver is carrying in his pocket for the purpose of sale one unstamped half-ounce package of morphine, on which the unpaid stamp tax is one cent, is the automobile to be totally condemned?"

The court in answering the first question, held the contention of the Commercial Credit company that a proper construction of Section 3450 contemplated only a removal from a place of manufacture or of storage of whisky, that is, from a distillery or bonded warehouse, leaving the tax unpaid, to be the correct interpretation of the word "removal," as used in said section.

With respect to the second question, the court said:

"The 're-enactment' made by the Willis-Campbell act, is not of all laws that may have been impliedly repealed by the national prohibition act, but only of 'all laws in regard to the manufacture and taxation of and traffic in intoxicating liquors' and 'penalties for violation of such laws.' Only by the broadest construction can Section 2340 be brought within this classification.

And after holding that an answer to the third question was unnecessary in view of its opinion upon the first and second questions, the court directed that the order of condemnation obtained by the government from District Judge John M. Killets, refusing to recognize the lien of the Commercial Credit company for the balance due on its chattel mortgage should be reversed.

This decision means that the Commercial Credit company will now be able to secure an order in the district court directing that it be paid the balance due on its chattel mortgage, out of the proceeds of the sale of the automobile, thus establishing a precedent of far-reaching importance, in that it will permit the continuance of the business of persons of limited means purchasing of automobiles and paying part of the purchase price down and securing the balance by chattel mortgage or conditional sale lien.

DEATH ANGEL SUMMONED W.E. PICKENS

Was Real Friend to the Poor and Unfortunate—Funeral Saturday.

William E. Pickens died at his home, 123 Pinkney street at 3:40 o'clock Wednesday morning following an illness of seven months.

His death was due to cirrhosis of the liver and a weak heart. During his lingering illness the invalid was cheerful at all times and never gave up to despair. It was this and the comfort of his family that buoyed him up and helped to withstand the insidious inroads of the malady that eventually caused his death.

William Pickens was a man that always had the interest and welfare of his native town at heart and he was in his element when the annual Pumpkin Show was on. Out of his own pocket put up premiums for the largest display of pumpkins. At Christmas time in the past few years he made the hearts of the kiddies glad by giving away hundreds of pounds of candies and boxes of oranges. The kids will miss these annual treats now that he has been gathered to his Fathers.

Mr. Pickens was the proprietor of the Palace restaurant which he conducted successfully for a number of years, succeeding his father in the business.

William Edward Pickens was born in this city March 16, 1867 and was the son of Zachariah and Elizabeth Green Pickens.

He married Miss Hattie Martin at Laurelville, January 17, 1901. His wife, a son and daughter, Ferdinand Pickens, a student at the Ohio Northern college, Ada, and Mary, wife of Lyman Teastworth, survive.

The deceased was a member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles and the Improved Order of Redmen.

Of his immediate family two sisters are living. They are Misses Mary and Cora Pickens, of this city.

The funeral services will be held at his late home Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. G. J. Troutman will officiate. Interment in Forest cemetery. The pallbearers will be Ferdinand Martin, Isaac Goff, James Carpenter, William English, Leroy Hill, Willis Olney and Edward Millrons.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL
Sunday School Lesson
(By REV. P. R. TZWATER, D.D., Dean of the Evening School, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for April 12
THE CRIPPLE AT THE BEAUTIFUL GATE
LESSON TEXT—Acts 3.
GOLDEN TEXT—"I am the Lord that healeth thee."—Ex. 15:26.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Story of a Lame Man.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Care of a Cripple.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Care of a Cripple and Its Results.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Church's Ministry to Body and Soul.

The indications are that some months had elapsed since Pentecost. The believers were being taught by the apostles who were showing their credentials by their mighty works (Acts 2:43).

1. The Lame Man Healed (v. 1-11).
1. The Occasion (v. 1).

Peter and John were going to the house of worship. They were friends who were mutual complements—each having that which the other lacked. This fellowship was according to the Lord's own arrangement and was most fitting. They were going up to Jerusalem to worship, though they knew full well the corruption of Judaism.

2. The Place (v. 2).
It was at the gate which leads from the outer to the inner court of the temple. It was called beautiful because of its magnificent bronze doors. This man was placed at the entrance to the place of worship because when a man comes closest to God he also comes closest to his fellowmen.

3. The Man (vv. 2-3).
This beggar was infirm from his birth. He was a familiar figure, known by the people for years. When he saw Peter and John he asked alms.

4. The Method (vv. 4-8).
(1) Gained the Man's Attention (v. 4). Peter and John commanded him to look on them. The sinner's attention must be secured before Christ can heal him. Having secured his attention they gave him more than he asked or expected. He asked for money and got healing.

(2) Peter Commanded Him in the Name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth to rise up and walk (v. 6). This was the very thing he was unable to do for so many years. Was not this mocking his very impotency? No! No! For it was in the name of Jesus. With the command went the ability to do.

(3) Peter Took Him by the Right Hand (v. 7). This act was meant to give impetus to his faith, not strength to his ankles.

5. The Man's Response (v. 8).
Strength came to his feet and ankle bones at once. He stood; he walked; he leaped and shouted praises to God. He thoroughly advertised the miracle. He ascribed the honor to God for his healing, and walked into the house of God.

6. The Effect (vv. 9-11).
The people were filled with wonder and amazement. The multitude ran together to see this remarkable thing. There was no question as to the genuineness of the miracle for this man had been a familiar figure for many years. It was evident that something supernatural had occurred.

(1) The helpless beggar had to be carried to the temple gate. Men and women out of Christ are spiritually helpless. We should bring sinners to Christ.

(2) Taking him by the hand shows the manner of Christian help. Ministers of Christ may not have silver or gold, but have something infinitely better to give.

11. Peter Witnessed of Jesus Before the Multitude (vv. 12-26).

This miracle focused the attention of the people upon Peter and John. Peter immediately turned their attention from himself to Christ. Peter seized the opportunity to present Christ to the people who had assembled. He told them that it was by faith in Jesus Christ whom the God of their fathers had glorified, whom they had delivered up and denied before Pilate when he desired to set Him free, and had desired a murderer to be granted to them instead. He showed that the disciples were also witnesses that God had raised Jesus from the dead, and charged home upon them their awful guilt; for they had denied the Holy one and chosen Barabbas, a murderer, instead of Christ, and even killed the Prince of Life. Despite their crime he appealed to them to repent (v. 19). Since they had committed this awful crime in ignorance, God would pardon their sin if they would repent, and he assured them that they should yet enjoy refreshing seasons from the Lord when God would send back Jesus Christ to earth to consummate the work of redemption.

Your Conscience
Remember this: that your conscience is not a law—no; God and reason made the law, and He placed conscience within you to determine.—Sterne.

The Treasure-Chest
God made the earth to supply human needs. Constantly we are proving it to be a treasure-chest. We have but to lift the lid and help ourselves.—Evangelical Tidings.

MEN IN PUBLIC LIFE
The American people in their community ideals are devoted to a clean code of morality. They do not sanction or tolerate or understand the indulgent standards which even now prevail in Europe. It would be fatal for a prominent public man in the United States to be found in moral laxness. The people are not inerrant, but they cannot accept even brilliant public service from a man of disreputable habit or loose living.

Every prominent man in public life protects his reputation from the finger of suspicion, knowing that a charge against his integrity or his moral character would be the heaviest load he could carry in his political career and that a proved charge would wreck him.—Chicago Tribune.

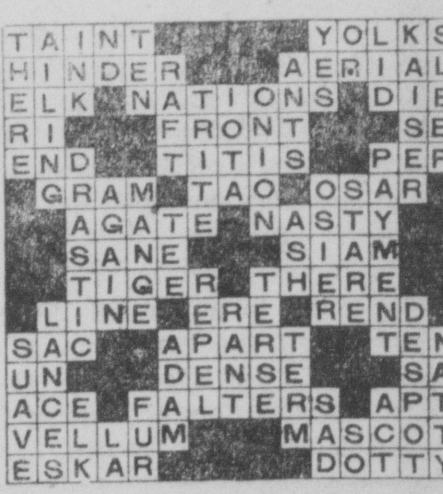

More Likely
The man who says he runs things at his house may mean the washing machine and vacuum cleaner.—Sunter (S. C.) Item.

HOW TO BE CHIC AT LITTLE COST

It is not often that fashion places within reach of the women of limited income models which in every way are identical with those imported from Paris and London which are sold at prices somewhat staggering to one who can spend only a moderate sum on her wardrobe. But in the new hand knitted suits and frocks which hold the most important place in every collection of modes for spring and summer, there is found the answer of how to be really chic at comparatively little cost.

All that is required is a bit of knitting skill, the necessary number of balls of yarn and the willingness to spend a little time in the creation of costumes which the wearer will have the satisfaction of knowing are approved by the foremost fashion authorities even as they are the first choice of women noted for their taste and discrimination in dress. At the present a mode, which may be said to dominate the styles of spring, is the two piece costume of hand knitted yarns in the faint pastel shades of pink, yellow, blue and delicate green. The lines are extremely simple. The stitch is the plain stockinette which can be easily knit by even a beginner.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

SEEK FOR CRADLE OF FIRST CIVILIZATION

Beloit College to Send Expedition to Africa.

Beloit, Wis.—Were the prehistoric ancestors of modern man natives of north Africa?

Will the theories of archeologists be revolutionized in regard to the cradle of prehistoric civilization?

Beloit college will send an expedition next summer to seek light on these matters, Dean George L. Collie, head of the department of anthropology at Beloit and curator of Logan museum, announced. Beloit will be represented on the expedition by Alonzo Pond, graduate of Beloit in 1918, a research worker for the college, and one who last year added the now famous Aurignacian necklace and other important specimens to the collection at Logan museum at Beloit, which, anthropologists say, is the finest teaching collection in the United States.

The expedition will be financed by Frank G. Logan, Chicago, patron of art and archeology. Pond will co-operate with M. Maurice Reygrasse, governor general of Algiers, whom Pond describes the leading African archeologist.

Men in France Seen as Offshoot.

Archeologists have accepted France heretofore as the birthplace of many of the ancestors of humans of today, and the cradle of prehistoric civilization, but reports of recent discoveries in French Algiers seem to indicate that the remnants found in the caves of France are merely those left by the offshoot from the original stock.

It may be that parallel civilizations were developed in France and in northern Africa, but the character of the material found in Africa indicates that the Aurignacian and Neolithic man may have lived there some time before the date set for the earliest remains of man found in Europe. Large quantities of archeological remains of early man have been found in Algiers—tools, pottery, dolmens and ornaments. The only collection of this material in the United States is at Logan museum, Beloit.

The expedition which is being sent out by Beloit to survey this territory will travel on racing camels in order to cover as much ground as possible in the short season in which it is possible for white people to travel in the Sahara. The party will start its journey in Africa some time in October, for before then and after March the heat is so intense that travel is impossible. The military escort, furnished by the French government, will vary with conditions and depend on the advice of the commanders of the various military posts in the sectors.

Route of Expedition.

The party will start from Algiers and go directly to Oran, on the Mediterranean, the next stop being at Anif, from whence it will continue south to Colomb Beshan, which is in the mountains along the eastern border of Morocco, thence to the Great Eastern Erg, finally arriving at Insalah. The return journey will proceed by way of the valley of Oned Mya, Inifek, Obargla and Biskra, ending at Tebessa. The entire trip probably will consume six months, covering about 4,000 miles.

Besides the archeological work which is the main object of the expedition, opportunity will be offered to study the Tounareg Hoggar, one of the most savage tribes of Africa, about which practically nothing is known.

The work of this party will be in practically virgin territory, as far as the archeologist is concerned, since the only research work that has been done there consists of one short trip, made by M. Reygrasse a short time ago. The discoveries made at that time were so important and aroused so much comment in the scientific world, that Mr. Pond determined on the expedition which is now being prepared.

Strange Finds Made in Clothes-Cleaning Plants

San Francisco.—The old saw that no man is a hero to his valet might be rewritten to say that no man, or woman either, is entirely a mystery to his or her dry cleaner, if one accepts the views of Miss Elizabeth Santry, receiver at a local dry cleaning establishment.

She explains men are prone to leave love letters in their clothes, and that women make a habit of sending garments with jewelry adhering.

"Life in a dry cleaning office is just one piece of jewelry after another and one love letter on the heels of another. When we send the letters home in the cleaned clothes, wives always get them and trouble follows."

"I called one woman up at a hotel and told her we had her diamond superbust, worth a fortune. She yawned and said, 'All right, dearie, I'll send a bellhop over some time today.'"

Predicts Sahara Will Be Biggest Power Station

London.—William H. Barker, eminent geographer, predicted before a body of scientists that the Sahara desert will become the greatest power station in the world through utilization of heat from sand. Africa, he said, is destined to play a most important part in the world's future. France "is anticipating making her Sudan territory into an Argentine for cattle and Egypt for cotton."

APRIL GRAND JURY MAKES ITS REPORT

Fifteen Cases Considered, Fifty-Four Witnesses— Eight Indictments.

The April Grand jury after a two days' session made its report Tuesday afternoon to Judge Clarence Curtin, and was excused subject to the call of the court.

The report, made by Foreman Frank Schleich shows that fifteen cases were considered, 56 witnesses examined, eight indictments were returned and eight cases were ignored, ()

The following indictments were made public:

Two indictments were withheld, as the persons charged have not been placed under arrest.

Suit For Divorce.

Harry S. Sanders has filed in probate court a suit for divorce from Elizabeth Sanders. The parties were married in London July 26, 1922. Shortly after her marriage she deserted her spouse to associate with other men, according to the petition filed by the plaintiff and he then joined the navy. Z. D. Fisher, of Mt. Sterling, represents the plaintiff.

KEEPING WELLCRYING BABIES

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

THE scientific study of babies has exceeded in efficiency the thoroughness of the Chicago stock yards. In that center of business energy it is an old story that every part of the pig except the squeal is used. In a recent issue of the American Journal of Diseases of Children, three doctors devote 28 pages to the effect of crying on new-born babies. They don't say anything about the effect of the babies crying on other members of the household.

Put into plain language, the questions which the investigators were trying to answer were: how much energy does the baby spend in crying and how much food is needed to furnish this energy.

They found that crying uses up a baby's energy, just as physical work uses up the energy of an adult, and that this lost energy must be restored by food. In other words, crying is work for a baby, and sometimes hard work.

Few of us grownups realize how hard a baby works when it cries. The authors estimated that if a baby cried continuously for 24 hours (which, thank God, it never does), and if it was 20 per cent efficient in using its energy, which would be better than the best locomotive, it would do an amount of work equal to lifting its own weight to the top of the Washington monument. And all this on only three tablespoonfuls of milk! As a fuel saver, the baby has the best power plant ever built backed off the boards.

How much energy the father expends in walking the floor with the baby while it is crying, the article does not state.

But the important fact is that crying is not a harmless amusement on the part of the baby. It is work. It uses up strength and energy, which the baby needs for growing. It tires the baby and makes him feel miserable, and then he cries some more.

Yet it is the only way he has of making the stupid grown-up world know that he is uncomfortable.

Crying is his danger signal and his safety valve. If he is well and happy and comfortable, he won't cry. Then everybody else is happy. He only cries when there is something wrong, and the sooner this is corrected the less energy he'll waste.

"S. O. S."

S. O. S. is a code signal only, and not an abbreviation. Officially there is no phrase as "save our ship" or "suspend other service" for which the letters stand. They were adopted as the universal distress signal by the international radio telegraphic convention of 1912. The signal is transmitted as three dots, three dashes and three dots, and was chosen because it is easily sent and easily distinguished.

Chinese Superstition

According to the superstitious belief of Chinese junkmen long lines of evil spirits follow close in the wake of the junks. If a junkman can cut across close under the bow of a large river boat he can by this means cut away, at least for a time, the pursuing line of evil spirits.

AMUSEMENTS

Mae Murray is so far the only actress on stage or screen who ever interested Vicente Blasco Ibanez, the famous Spanish writer sufficiently to have him write a special story for her. The story is "Circe, the Enchantress," the photoplay version of which is coming to the Metropolitan theater tonight and tomorrow.

Mr. Ibanez saw two of Miss Murray's Metro pictures in Paris more than a year ago. He was so impressed by Miss Murray's ability and her Vivacity, that he told a friend who was with him at the theater, that he would like to write a story for her.

Several months ago this friend came to the United States and happened to mention somewhere what Ibanez had said. The word was passed along until it reached Miss Murray.

Immediately she cabled the famous Spanish author with the result that he wrote a story dealing with the adventures of a modern siren whose power over men was as compelling as that of Circe, of Greek mythology.

"Circe, the Enchantress" is a Metro-Goldwyn picture presented by Robert Z. Leonard and produced by Tiffany Productions of which Mr. Leonard is director general and M. H. Hoffman is general manager.

DWELLERS IN CIRCLEVILLE COMMUTERS

N. G. Spangler Makes Practical Suggestions at Chamber of Commerce—

At the chamber of commerce meeting Tuesday evening, the matter of securing cheaper transportation over the Scioto Valley Traction line for commuters, was brought to the attention of officials of the company; P. S. Thompson, superintendent; J. O. Bradford, general freight and passenger agent, and John H. Drum, station agent, who were present.

Noah G. Spangler, a former traveling freight agent of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, was the speaker of the evening, and he said, in part; that since the city cannot induce factories to come here, the next best thing is to clean up the town and build homes for people who want to get away from the smoke and noise of a hustling, industrial center like Columbus, and to live under freer conditions and in a good, healthy atmosphere.

Why not build up your own town? You get better returns on real estate than you do on other investments. If you have decent living conditions in your town, you will be bound to attract people here to make this town their home.

My idea would be to have the Traction company place on sale a sixty ride ticket good for a short time at a rate that would induce commuters to use the traction line.

President Sensebrenner appointed a committee of three; N. G. Spangler, R. L. Brehmer and T. O. Gilliland to examine into the feasibility of the project.

LEAGUE OF SOLDIERS IS UNDER BAN

The national disabled soldiers' league today was barred from the mails by the Post Office department on the ground that it is a concern engaged in obtaining money through the mails by false pretenses.

John T. Nolan, Commander James F. McCann, treasurer and Kenneth D. Murphy, adjutant, were cited in the order as officers of the league.

The fraud order was issued by Postmaster General New upon the recommendation of H. J. Donnelly, acting solicitor after an investigation at which the officers of the organization were given a hearing.

The investigation covered substantially the same ground as the inquiry made by a select committee of the house last winter, at which charges of fraud were extensively made against the league.

Pencil campaigns and alleged "fake" conventions of the organization were delved into by Donnelly with the conclusion that they were not bonafide.

"The evidence shows that this concern started out as a bonafide concern," Donnelly reported to New. "However since Nolan has been at the head of it, the organization has ceased to function as originally intended."

Visible for 80 Miles

The most powerful electric searchlight in the world, with a normal range of more than 50 miles, is in operation on Staten Island, New York. It is part of the equipment of the United States lighthouse service. On a clear night the beacon has been reported as visible in Philadelphia, more than 80 miles away.

Famous Seven Cities

The Seven Cities of Cibola, belonging to the Zuni tribe of Indians, which occupied the site of the present pueblo of Zuni, in western New Mexico, were held in renown by early Spanish explorers in Mexico.

Rubber Skin Saves Fruit

A practical new process for preserving tropical fruits, other than bananas and pineapples, so that they may be shipped long distances, recently has been discovered, according to Popular Science monthly. The fruit, gathered a little before it is ripe, is smeared with a thin coating of rubber latex, which, when coagulated, forms a protective skin. The process of ripening is slowed up, it is said, keeping the fruit in good condition.

Support for Plant Stalk

A charming support to hold steady the stalk of a plant in a pot consists of a slender stick with a painted wooden bird nailed or glued at its top. Such a bird may be cut, in silhouette, from thin soft wood and painted in bright colors with oil or house paints, and afterward varnished. Even though the work is somewhat roughly done, the effect will still be good.

SEEK FOR CRADLE OF FIRST CIVILIZATION*Beloit College to Send Expedition to Africa.

Beloit, Wis.—Were the prehistoric ancestors of modern man natives of north Africa?

Will the theories of archeologists be revolutionized in regard to the cradle of prehistoric civilization?

Beloit college will send an expedition next summer to seek light on these matters, Dean George L. Collie, head of the department of anthropology at Beloit and curator of Logan museum, announced. Beloit will be represented on the expedition by Alonzo Pond, graduate of Beloit in 1918, a research worker for the college, and one who last year added the now famous Aurignacian necklace and other important specimens to the collection at Logan museum at Beloit, which, anthropologists say, is the finest teaching collection in the United States.

The expedition will be financed by Frank G. Logan, Chicago, patron of art and archeology. Pond will co-operate with M. Maurice Reygrasse, governor general of Algiers, whom Pond describes the leading African archeologist.

Men in France Seen as Offshoot.

Archeologists have accepted France heretofore as the birthplace of many of the ancestors of humans of today, and the cradle of prehistoric civilization, but reports of recent discoveries in French Algiers seem to indicate that the remnants found in the caves of France are merely those left by the offshoot from the original stock.

It may be that parallel civilizations were developed in France and in northern Africa, but the character of the material found in Africa indicates that the Aurignacian and Neolithic man may have lived there some time before the date set for the earliest remains of man found in Europe. Large quantities of archeological remains of early man have been found in Algiers—tools, pottery, dolmens and ornaments. The only collection of this material in the United States is at Logan museum, Beloit.

The expedition which is being sent out by Beloit to survey this territory will travel on racing camels in order to cover as much ground as possible in the short season in which it is possible for white people to travel in the Sahara. The party will start its journey in Africa some time in October, for before then and after March the heat is so intense that travel is impossible. The military escort, furnished by the French government, will vary with conditions and depend on the advice of the commanders of the various military posts in the sectors.

Route of Expedition.

The party will start from Algiers and go directly to Oran, on the Mediterranean, the next stop being at An Sefra, from whence it will continue south to Colomb Beshan, which is in the mountains along the eastern border of Morocco, thence to the Great Eastern Erg, finally arriving at Insalah. The return journey will proceed by way of the valley of Oued Mya, Inifek, Obargia and Biskra, ending at Tebessa. The entire trip probably will consume six months, covering about 4,000 miles.

Besides the archeological work which is the main object of the expedition, opportunity will be offered to study the Touareg Hoggar, one of the most savage tribes of Africa, about which practically nothing is known.

The work of this party will be in practically virgin territory, as far as the archeologist is concerned, since the only research work that has been done there consists of one short trip, made by M. Reygrasse a short time ago. The discoveries made at that time were so important and aroused so much comment in the scientific world, that Mr. Pond determined on the expedition which is now being prepared.

Strange Finds Made in Clothes-Cleaning Plants

San Francisco.—The old saw that no man is a hero to his valet might be rewritten to say that no man, or woman either, is entirely a mystery to his or her dry cleaner, if one accepts the views of Miss Elizabeth Santry, receiver at a local dry cleaning establishment.

"Life in a dry cleaning office is just one piece of jewelry after another and one love letter on the heels of another. When we send the letters home in the cleaned clothes, wives always get them and trouble follows."

"I called one woman up at a hotel and told her we had her diamond earring, worth a fortune. She yawned and said, 'All right, dearie, I'll send a belthop over some time today.'"

Predicts Sahara Will Be Biggest Power Station

London.—William H. Barker, eminent geographer, predicted before a body of scientists that the Sahara desert will become the greatest power station in the world through utilization of heat from sand. Africa, he said, is destined to play a most important part in the world's future. France "is anticipating making her Sudan territory into an Argentine for cattle and Egypt for cotton."

The following indictments were made public:

Two indictments were withheld, as the persons charged have not been placed under arrest.

Suit For Divorce.

Harry S. Sanders has filed in probate court a suit for divorce from Elizabeth Sanders. The parties were married in London July 26, 1922. Shortly after her marriage she deserted her spouse to associate with other men, according to the petition filed by the plaintiff and he then joined the navy. Z. D. Fisher, of Mt. Sterling, represents the plaintiff.

KEEPING WELLCRYING BABIES

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

THE scientific study of babies has exceeded in efficiency the thoroughness of the Chicago stock yards. In that center of business energy it is an old story that every part of the pig except the squeal is used. In a recent issue of the American Journal of Diseases of Children, three doctors devote 28 pages to the effect of crying on new-born babies. They don't say anything about the effect of the babies crying on other members of the household.

Put into plain language, the questions which the investigators were trying to answer were: how much energy does the baby spend in crying and how much food is needed to furnish this energy.

They found that crying uses up a baby's energy, just as physical work uses up the energy of an adult, and that this lost energy must be restored by food. In other words, crying is work for a baby, and sometimes hard work.

Few of us grownups realize how hard a baby works when it cries. The authors estimated that if a baby cried continuously for 24 hours (which, thank God, it never does), and if it was 20 per cent efficient in using its energy, which would be better than the best locomotive, it would do an amount of work equal to lifting its own weight to the top of the Washington monument. And all this on only three tablespoonfuls of milk! As a fuel saver, the baby has the best power plant ever built backed off the boards.

How much energy the father expends in walking the floor with the baby while it is crying, the article does not state.

But the important fact is that crying is not a harmless amusement on the part of the baby. It is work. It uses up strength and energy, which the baby needs for growing. It tires the baby and makes him feel miserable, and then he cries some more.

Yet it is the only way he has of making the stupid, grown-up world know that he is uncomfortable.

Crying is his danger signal and his safety valve. If he is well and happy and comfortable, he won't cry. Then everybody else is happy. He only cries when there is something wrong, and the sooner this is corrected the less energy he'll waste.

"S. O. S."

S. O. S. is a code signal only, and not an abbreviation. Officially there is no phrase as "save our ship" or "suspend other service" for which the letters stand. They were adopted as the universal distress signal by the international radio telegraphic convention of 1912. The signal is transmitted as three dots, three dashes and three dots, and was chosen because it is easily sent and easily distinguished.

Chinese Superstition

AMUSEMENTS

Mae Murray is so far the only actress on stage or screen who ever interested Vicente Blasco Ibanez, the famous Spanish writer sufficiently to have him write a special story for her. The story is "Circe, the Enchantress," the photoplay version of which is coming to the Metropolitan theater tonight and tomorrow.

Mr. Ibanez saw two of Miss Murray's Metro pictures in Paris more than a year ago. He was so impressed by Miss Murray's ability and her vivacity, that he told a friend who was with him at the theater, that he would like to write a story for her.

Several months ago this friend came to the United States and happened to mention somewhere what Ibanez had said. The word was passed along until it reached Miss Murray.

Immediately she cabled the famous Spanish author with the result that he wrote a story dealing with the adventures of a modern siren whose power over men was as compelling as that of Circe, of Greek mythology.

"Circe, the Enchantress" is a Metro-Goldwyn picture presented by Robert Z. Leonard and produced by Tiffany Productions of which Mr. Leonard is director general and M. H. Hoffman is general manager.

DWELLERS IN CIRCLEVILLE COMMUTERS

At the chamber of commerce meeting Tuesday evening, the matter of securing cheaper transportation over the Scioto Valley Traction line for commuters, was brought to the attention of officials of the company; P. S. Thompson, superintendent; J. O. Bradfield, general freight and passenger agent, and John H. Drum, station agent, who were present.

Noah G. Spangler, a former traveling freight agent of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, was the speaker of the evening, and he said, in part; that since the city cannot induce factories to come here, the next best thing is to clean up the town and build homes for people who want to get away from the smoke and noise of a hustling, industrial center like Columbus, and to live under freer conditions and in a good, healthy atmosphere.

Why not build up your own town? You get better returns on real estate than you do on other investments. If you have decent living conditions in your town, you will be bound to attract people here to make this town their home.

My idea would be to have the Traction company place on sale a sixty ride ticket good for a short time at a rate that would induce commuters to use the traction line.

President Sensebrenner appointed a committee of three; N. G. Spangler, R. L. Brehmer and T. O. Gilliland to examine into the feasibility of the project.

LEAGUE OF SOLDIERS IS UNDER BAN

The national disabled soldiers' league today was barred from the mails by the Post Office department on the ground that it is a concern engaged in obtaining money through the mails by false pretenses.

John T. Nolan, Commander James F. McCann, treasurer and Kenneth D. Murphy, adjutant, were cited in the order as officers of the league.

The fraud order was issued by Postmaster General New upon the recommendation of H. J. Donnelly, acting solicitor after an investigation at which the officers of the organization were given a hearing.

The investigation covered substantially the same ground as the inquiry made by a select committee of the house last winter, at which charges of fraud were extensively made against the league.

Pencil campaigns and alleged "fake" conventions of the organization were delved into by Donnelly with the conclusion that they were not bonafide.

"The evidence shows that this concern started out as a bonafide concern," Donnelly reported to New. "However since Nolan has been at the head of it, the organization has ceased to function as originally intended."

Visible for 80 Miles

The most powerful electric searchlight in the world, with a normal range of more than 50 miles, is in operation on Staten Island, New York. It is part of the equipment of the United States lighthouse service. On a clear night the beacon has been reported as visible in Philadelphia, more than 80 miles away.

The Seven Cities of Cibola, belonging to the Zuni tribe of Indians, which occupied the site of the present pueblo of Zuni, in western New Mexico, were held in renown by early Spanish explorers in Mexico.

Rubber Skin Saves Fruit

A practical new process for preserving tropical fruits, other than bananas and pineapples, so that they may be shipped long distances, recently has been discovered, according to Popular Science monthly. The fruit, gathered a little before it is ripe, is smeared with a thin coating of rubber latex, which, when congealed, forms a protective skin. The process of ripening is slowed up, it is said, keeping the fruit in good condition.

Support for Plant Stalk

A charming support to hold steady the stalk of a plant in a pot consists of a slender stick with a painted wooden bird nailed or glued at its top. Such a bird may be cut, in silhouette, from thin soft wood and painted in bright colors with oil or house paints, and afterward varnished. Even though the work is somewhat roughly done, the effect will still be good.

An Ensemble Suit for Doubtful Spring Days

Lightweight velours is the material used for this ensemble designed for early spring. It is decorated with applique diamonds of the same material in a lighter tone, and collared with seal.

Felt, Silk and Straw to Be Used in Spring Hats

There are rumors that felt and silk and silk and straw are to play an important role in millinery fashions for the late spring. Pastel shades are favorites and for trimming interesting fantasies and flower clusters are used.

Here and there a large hat is seen, but one may safely say that for chic nothing quite takes the place of the small, rather close hat.

There are some women who can wear a large hat to perfection and who seem to know how to make it an integral part of their ensemble, but the vast majority put on a hat of considerable size so that one thinks only of the hat and not of the wearer. This perhaps is the reason that for the past three seasons the small hat has reigned supreme. It is more generally becoming because it is not so obvious, and its very lack of ornamentation gives it an air of distinction not appreciated by the elaborately trimmed headgear of a decade ago.

Although it remains small in shape, the hat of the moment changes from month to month. Early in the season the high square crown displaced the bowler crown of the long popular cloche, this in turn was supplanted by the high-peaked crown, and now comes a crown equally high, but dented and twisted to suit each individual wearer. Brims instead of curving downward have taken an upward tilt and add a certain piquancy to the appearance that is undeniably charming.

Headgear Supplied by Milliners of London

A standardized mode in women's hat-wear is feared by London milliners if the cloche fashion is allowed to remain in favor. The square-crowned mode which was to be the successor of the cloche has not been altogether successful. Another mode has been introduced in London, which, like most new things is borrowed from the past. It fits the head snugly, and may be likened to the fool's cap, although other varieties suggest the witch's peak, the crusader's helmet, and the fisherman's cap. The crown is soft, being neither stiffened nor lined; it is sometimes supported on a firm brim of panne or velvet, a neat rolled brim, and the conical crown may be adjusted in any way to suit the wearer.

In some of the new models carried out in dark velvet and silks the fool's-cap shape is exaggerated to assume the outline of the traditional witch's hat. These are cut higher in the crown and finished with galon of gold and silver cord instead of the usual brim.

Winsome, Interesting Objects of Decoration

Anyone who has tucked away in the attic or old trunks a collection of Godey prints has the materials for making any number of interesting and attractive objects of decoration. The most ambitious attempt is a large screen for the bedroom or living room, but it is well worth the effort. The surface is of natural-color linen and the sides are bound with linen tape in a contrasting color. The quaint figures are cut from the prints and applied on to the background.

Vogue Affects Trade

The furriers and the glovers are at war again. The vogue of caracul is responsible. This fur is obtained from baby lambs which also supply the leather for ladies' gloves. Since the caracul vogue, growers have been able to obtain better prices from the furriers and the glovers are left without supplies.

"Oh, so---so," with the faintest shrug of the shoulders.

FLOWERS IN PLENTY IN MEXICAN MARKET

Profusion of Color Marks Native Selling Places

When in Mexico do as the Mexicans do is a wise rule to follow in regard to rising early in the morning, for if you do not you will miss the most delightful and interesting part of the day. Every one is up at daybreak, and one of the first duties of the housewife is to see about the day's marketing. Unlike many women of our country, she rarely if ever goes to market herself, but prefers to give her orders to her servant.

There is always the market proper, which is under cover, with stalls arranged not unlike those in our markets. This, however, forms but a small part of the whole. All the streets leading to the market have their displays, and the human tide of color moving in and out has an irresistible charm.

The first thing that attracts one's attention upon entering is the flowers, with their riot of color. Violets, the double sweet-scented kind; roses, with long stems and thick, glossy leaves, indescribable in their delicacy of color; exquisite carnations, with dew still on them—all the flowers you can carry and a flashing smile from the vendor for a few cents, says a writer in the New York Herald-Tribune.

Many of the vegetables sold were new to us, especially those of the root variety. The Mexican woman buys her food in small quantities, just sufficient for one day's use. I have often seen a woman carrying in her hand one onion, a few carrots and a slice of squash—probably her soup vegetables for one day. Potatoes and tomatoes, although natives of these southern countries, are small and inferior, showing little cultivation. We were surprised to see many of our own native fruits displayed; peaches, pears, grapes and apples were plentiful, but did not compare in flavor with those grown in the North. Mangoes, pineapples and aguacates were at their best and were thoroughly enjoyed.

Here and there about the market Indian women sat cooking over charcoal braseros. Rice, frijoles and chile con carne were dished up in brown glazed bowls, and eaten with strips of tortillas, folded so that they could serve as spoons. Tortillas are flat, thin cakes made of cornmeal and water and fried. Other women sat behind palm mats, upon which were arranged piles of nuts of six or seven each, which they sold for 1 cent a pile. These, with a few seeds and several bunches of herbs, formed their stock in trade, the whole not amounting to more than 20 cents.

Beautiful woven baskets, reed and raffia work of all kinds, for which the Indians of North and South America are famous, delight the tourist. The dyes give brilliant colors of purple, yellow, red and green, which harmonize perfectly with the colors of the fruit and vegetables on all sides.

Many and Varied Are Sources of Happiness

A quaint and well-loved philosopher asserted his belief that one must get happiness out of one's work or never know what happiness is. The dictum remains unchallenged, as such things usually do; yet this philosopher's wisdom was the product of his limitations and was inspired by the poverty of his experience.

Observe, by way of refutation, the man who burns powder. An autumn day finds him afield, striding through stubble in the wake of a brown-eyed dog. The air is crisp and sweet; the distant hills are blue; the sky above is without a cloud. The dog becomes a statue; there is a whirr of wings; the two barrels of gun roar in quick succession. This isn't work, but no fabled king ever was happier than this bronzed hunter.

Observe the man on his hands and knees. He is a bear. He growls. He advances with great stealth. Behind a chair a small boy crouches, affecting terror. There is a rush, a very bedlam of ferocious growls, and then ecstatic squeals as the capture is completed. An undignified business, perhaps; but not work. Yet who could be happier than this man who romps with his son?

Observe the woman in the chair, interminably rocking, interminably knitting. The rocking and the knitting are not work; they are but accompaniments to the serious business of life. The serious business is talking—interminably talking—about people and their frailties. The dear woman enjoys the sound of her voice; enjoys the appreciative silence of her audiences. The world holds none who are happier than she.

Observe the sober folks who sit in pews. Their faces are lighted by a peace that passes understanding. They have found happiness.

Observe the young woman on the street, rouged, powdered, freshly bobbed, garbed from head to toe as fashion decrees. She pauses at a shop window to inspect her image. There is nothing on her mind except her precious self. She is a dream and she knows it. And in all the world there is no bliss so flawless and so complete as hers.

Happiness, in short, is for those who have the capacity for it.

Proclaims Sea Lion Is Man's Ideal Pet

London.—The sea lion is the ideal pet and the perfect friend of man, according to recommendations made by members of the Amateur Menagerie club, who published recently a book on their various experiences with animals.

Owing to the expense of the upkeep of a sea lion, however, it is not probable they will ever replace cats and dogs as pets.

A sea lion has all the intelligence of a dog, adaptability and affection; but ordinarily it costs from $500 to $700 a year to keep a pet of this kind.

One of the club members, L. R. Brightwell, has had much experience with sea lions as pets and highly recommends them. In his opinion, it is only the high rate for the use of water and the cost of the fish as food which prevent the sea lion becoming a universal pet.

"Greed is undoubtedly the sea lion's one great fault," writes Mr. Brightwell, "but, given enough fish, a sea lion may be taught anything. His amazing gifts of balancing, diving and forming picturesque groups are implanted in him by nature."

Starboard is probably derived from steer board and became identified with the side of the ship to the right of a person at the steer board and facing the bow. The word larboard was used to designate the side to the left. This term has been superseded by the word port in order to avoid the confusion caused by the similarity of names.
